Q 12	Mallika Sarabhai and Monisha Sarabhai are best friends. Mallika belongs to the family of highly controlling parents, who mostly took every decision on behalf of her. Mallika mostly disliked those decisions. Monisha on the other hand had a set of carefree parents who gave her the freedom to choose her career and actions accordingly but with certain logical supervision and mentoring. Mallika had this strange habit of counting everything (change returned, chocolates, papers, etc) in her hand excessively before she gave away that product/thing to someone else. For example, she used to count the change returned to her by the shopkeeper for hours. Monisha did her research and found out that her friend Mallika was obsessed about this “counting” mechanism in her day to day routine. Monisha contacts you (and you are a Certified Psychologist), for guidance and diagnosis of Mallika’s behaviour. What kind of issue might be Mallika facing? How would you like to help her out and also discuss the role of her parents in this scenario.	25	CO4
